Western Lunatic Asylum.

This institution has never been under more efficient management than at present no Superintendent, since the establishment of the asylum, has had a clearer and more comprehensive understanding of the purbelieves in the beneficial agencies of light poses of such a charity than Dr. Conrad. He and air-in the sanitary effects of thorough ventilation, healthy exercise and suggestive associations. With this view, modifications have been made in many of the old arrange ments, to assure the sun bath, the full play of the baimy breezes of this season of the year; innocent exercises on the green sward under the shade of the stately trees; and in other modes where stricter restraints have to be observed in certain of the patients. Through every department this idea is being carried out, as far as available means will allow. It is to be regretted that the re-sources of the institution are too meagre for the work that ought to be done. As it is, the sanitary arrangements, the modifications in the interest of economy, comfort and convenience, and to aid in the improvement of the mental condition of the unfortunates committed to the institution, are such as to greatly promote the beneficial purposes of this great charity.

The capacity of the institution will comfortably accommodate about 550 patients. To that number the present buildings should be limited. But there are at this time 634, in the 215 are make and 216 formula. In of whom 318 are males and 316 females. In rooms where there should be four, there are sometimes six or eight—comfortable it is true, but more crowded than they should be, in the judgment of the superintendent. There are applications on file for the admission of 317—of whom 154 are males and 163 females. There are, however, no vacant rooms or beds, according to the report for the month of April. About two-thirds of the patients now in the asylum are incura-ble, and about an average of one-third of those admitted are incurable. And as the death rate does not equal the number of incurables committed to the institution each year, it must necessarily follow that it will not be many years before the present capacity of the buildings will be commanded by those who are incurable. This is a serious phase of the demands of the insane upon the care of of the insane upon the care of the State. In some other commonwealths provision is made at the asylums for 1,000 patients, and this ought to be and will be he policy of Virginia, as soon as the condition of the treasury will allow it. The policy of the management is to give preference to State patients rather than pay patients—as it is a State charity, designed primarily to provide for these whose friends may not be able to provide for them.

To pass through the various wards and enclosures where these unfortunates are confined, is to awaken the sympathy of very one touched with a feeling of humanity. While neatness and care are observable in every department, and in all the appointments, the fact that one stands in the presence of shattered reason and the wreck and rain of once bright intellects, impresses the necessity for this beneficent institution, and the largest liberality on the part of the commonwealth in providing for the needs of those who, from whatever cause, may be consigned to its walls for treatment. trust the time will soon come when no one with "mind diseased" will ask in vain for admittance. It is one of the most sacred duties that can be imposed upon a people to care for its afflicted and helpless—a duty that cannot be shirked or grudgingly discharged. All that the means appropriated will allow is being done to carry out the humane purposes of the in-stitution. The superintendent is keenly stitution. The superintendent is keenly alive to his responsibilities—is familiar with the cause and condition of every patient's ailment-with every department and nook and corner of the vast establishment, and is intelligently and wisely using the authority with which he has been invested, for the alleviation and improvement of those who have been, or may be, entrusted to his charge. It affords us pleasure to be thus able to testify, and give the assurance to the friends of those who have been bereft of reason that they are under kind, intelligent For sale in Alexandria by the following well- and sagacious treatment, both as to mind

The following figures briefly and intelligently set forth the statistical condition of the asylum. They represent its actual condition at this writing. Patients were first admitted into this asylum in August, 1827, over 59 years ago:
